

Roots Down

New Bedford

what:

A free monthly series focusing on sustainable gardening techniques.

why:

To help new and experienced gardeners gain a deeper understanding of methods used in healthy food production.

To help build local food security for our community.

when:

4PM on the first Tuesday of every month

March 3: Introduction to Organic Gardening – Understanding Soil Basics (and local resources to help you grow).

April 7: Preparing a New Garden Bed and Rejuvenating Your Existing Garden (with an introduction to container gardening).

May 5: Starting Your Own Seedlings and using transplanting and crop succession to increase production.

The summer topics will be announced in May .

We'll also be co-hosting neighborhood workshops throughout the city during the spring; contact Brix Bounty for locations and times and/or to be added to the Roots Down mailing list.

where:

Lawler Branch Public Library at 745 Rockdale (NE Corner of Buttonwood Park). Accessible by SRTA bus routes #6 and #10

Roots Down - New Bedford is part of the Safe Soils for Healthy Food Project presented by Brix Bounty Farm and the Rotch-Jones-Duff House&Garden Museum and is made possible by the Community Foundation of Southeastern Massachusetts - SEEAL Fund.

For more information please contact Brix Bounty Farm at 508-992-1868 or visit the farm blog at <http://brixbounty.blogspot.com/>